CARMEN CICERO, June Kelly, 591 Broadway, near Prince Street, (212) 226-1660 (through May 1). A big glowing derby hovering mysteriously in the woods; an old brick factory stranded in a yellow wheat field; a midget airplane flying over a stream in the moonlight: these are some of the sweetly surrealistic scenes generously painted in an appealing cartoonish style by Mr. Cicero, a Montclair State College professor of art (Johnson).
